

TRIANGLES – Witnesses of the Holocaust
SYNOPSIS

TRIANGLES is an unprecedented, inclusive and history changing film that shines an intimate light on a broader community and culture of the Holocaust not previously revealed. The Holocaust was a cruel and inconceivable tragedy. Not only were six million Jews murdered, other groups rarely heard about were also persecuted and killed by the Nazis before, during and after the Holocaust.

TRIANGLES allows victims and survivors who have been left out tell their stories in their own words. Victims were of other religions, different classes, women and the disabled. Three million Soviet POWS, fifteen thousand male homosexuals, lesbians, transsexual and transgender people, one million Gypsies and two million Poles were also murdered.

Director/Producer Ann P Meredith is herself a survivor of military sexual assault, experimentation, interrogation and torture and realized this moment was a ‘call to action.’

TRIANGLES’ honors those whose lives were taken and celebrates the survivors who endured the deepest suffering, continue to heal and are helping others to heal. Cameras are close-in allowing the survivors’ faces to be the cinematic palette, the visual landscape.

Josef, Eva, Anne, Gabriella, Rudolf, Paula, Al, Regina, Ruth, Chris, Rochelle, Joel, Evelyn, Gabriele, Dorchen, Frieda and Henny’s stories offer a sample of hidden children, work camp survivors, kinder transport rescue mission, sexual abuse and death camp survivors.

Twenty-one months of research unearthed living male homosexual and lesbian Holocaust survivors. Most all men found, sadly could not participate. Still terrorized, deep at risk, they are even now afraid to lose everything if seen and heard, including their lives.
